-----	----------------------------------	--

The following are the key risk factors which should be carefully considered by prospective investors before deciding whether to invest in ETP Securities. Investors should consult their own financial, legal, accounting and tax advisors about the risks of an investment in ETP Securities.

There are significant risks associated with an investment in ETP Securities including, without limitation, leverage risk, exchange rate risk, price risk, counterparty risk and liquidity risk. Past performance is not an indication of expected future performance and the investment performance of ETP Securities could be volatile. General movements in local and international markets and factors that affect the investment climate and investor sentiment could all affect the level of trading and, therefore, the market price of the ETP Securities. Investors should note that general movements in markets and factors that affect the investor climate and investor sentiment may have different effects on each Series of ETP Securities.

Investors are dependent on there being one or more Authorised Participants making a market in ETP Securities in order to provide investors with liquidity. If there are no Authorised Participants, or the Authorised Participant(s) fail to effectively make a market in the ETP Securities of a Series, the investors may not be able to sell any such ETP Securities within a short time period, or at a price close to the ETP Security Value for that Series.

The ETP Securities are index-linked securities. The trading value of each ETP Security will be linked to the daily performance of the relevant Index, which in turn will be linked to the performance of the Component Security underlying that Index. The Component Security of the relevant Index for such Series will be purchased or sold in accordance with the applicable Leverage Factor for such Series, to form the Collateral Assets. Investors have no ownership rights in such Index nor in the Component Security of such Index. The amount payable on redemption of the ETP Securities will depend on the liquidation of the Collateral Assets held in the Margin Account.

Issue specific summary:

ETP Securities giving investors exposure to the performance of a leveraged Index will be much more volatile than an investment in an unleveraged index or an unleveraged investment in the Component Security of a leveraged Index. Relatively small changes in the value of the relevant Index or the Component Security of such Index may cause investors to lose some, or all, of their investment in an accelerated timescale.

An investment in ETP Securities is suitable only for a sophisticated investor who is able to monitor its position in such ETP Securities on a frequent basis, and who understands the risks of compounded daily returns. ETP Securities give the stated exposure to the relevant Index on a daily basis and accordingly, over periods of more than one day, their performance can differ significantly from the performance of the relevant Component Security multiplied by the applicable Leverage Factor for such longer period.

Accordingly, ETP Securities are suitable only for short-term investment by knowledgeable investors who understand the increased risks of an investment in leveraged products.

In respect of each Series of ETP Securities, the fees payable by ETP Securityholders comprise two components:

- (ii) a daily margin interest rate corresponding to the relevant benchmark rate plus one per cent will be charged by the Margin Account Provider to the Issuer, due to cash borrowing costs resulting from obtaining exposure to the Component Security of the relevant Index of such Series, subject to adjustment in accordance with the terms of the Margin Account Agreement, Investors should therefore note that such daily margin interest rate is subject to change.

The Issuer will pass on these costs to investors, therefore reducing the value of their investment in the ETP Securities.

No other costs will be charged to investors by the Issuer.
